

The story of Belle

While driving home from work on a Saturday night, a good Samaritan, saw something thrown from a car in front of her. It looked "furry" and she immediately stopped to find a tiny little kitten. The kitten was in shock and bleeding from her face. She called a Paws-Ability member who helps with rescue and the kitten now had a chance to survive.

Later that evening it became obvious that the kitten was in distress and she was rushed to emergency care.

The tiny kitten, now named Belle, underwent surgery to repair damage to her face that was preventing her from breathing well and made it impossible to eat. ECVR repaired the damage and while in surgery, Belle touched the heart of a vet tech who fell in love with her and would adopt her! In one short night, Belle went from being "disposable pet" to a "forever pet"! Life for Belle will be good now but life for thousands of "disposable pets" continued with animal cruelty claiming so many lives.
